A Grand Ole TIME

Celebrating 100 YEARS of the Grand Ole Opry

Musician, singer and songwriter Uncle Jimmy Thompson had no idea he was fiddling his way into history when he performed on the Nov. 28, 1925, debut of the "WSM Barn Dance." Yet, 100 years and a name change later, the "Grand Ole Opry" is celebrating a whole century of song.

Powerhouse performances and special events mark the milestone during the yearlong Opry 100 festivities commemorating the longest-running radio show in history. At the heart of this year's programming is a celebration of the music, artists and fans who turned the Opry into a cultural touchstone that continually evolves to meet the moment.

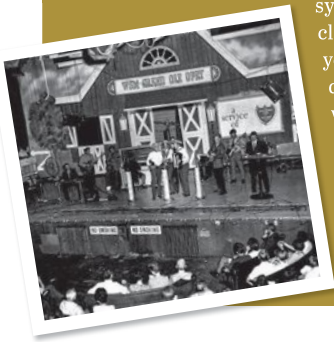

Ryman Auditorium

What's in a Name?

Using an acronym for their company slogan, "We Shield Millions," Nashville-based National Life & Accident Insurance Company launched WSM Radio in 1925. Soon after, program director and radio announcer George D. Hay debuted the "WSM Barn Dance," a live music show featuring area blues players and Appalachian musicians.

Considered "hillbilly" music, the show followed a syndicated program of classical performances. Two years after first airing, Hay quipped: "For the past hour, we have been listening to the music taken largely from the Grand Opera, but from now on, we'll present the Grand Ole Opry."

And the rest, as they say, is history.

SETTING THE TONE

Opry 100 kicked off the year with a return to its roots at the Ryman Auditorium. Originally built as a religious tabernacle and home to the Opry for more than three decades, the Ryman is affectionately known as the "Mother Church of Country Music."

This year, Opry 100 at the Ryman has featured legends, superstars and guest performers connecting past, present and future. Bill Anderson, the Opry's longest-tenured member, performed the first song of the first show in 2025. Other artists who helped get the party started included Kelsea Ballerini, Ashley McBryde, Old Crow Medicine Show, Lainey Wilson, Trace Adkins, Steve Wariner, Mark Wills and more.

The first show also marked the debut of the Opry 100 exhibition at the Ryman that takes guests on a musical journey over the past century with multimedia displays, rare photographs and personal artifacts bringing the story of the Opry and its legendary performers to life.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

Following the centennial celebration at the Ryman, the show returned home to the Grand Ole Opry House for a full slate of performances and events. By year's end, the Opry will stage more than 230 shows, the most in its history, and welcome 100 artists making their Opry debut.

Throughout the year, the Opry 100 Honors series will celebrate icons of the Opry, including Roy Acuff, Patsy Cline, Hank Williams, Bill Monroe, Johnny Cash and June Carter Cash, George Jones, Loretta Lynn, Charley Pride, Charlie Daniels, and many others through musical tributes, clips from the audio and video archives, and remembrances from artists inspired by these pioneers and innovators.

Country music fans have the opportunity to vote on the 100 all-time greatest songs that capture the spirit of country music and define the genre. Winners of the Opry 100 Greatest Songs will be showcased during performances throughout the year.

While embracing change over the decades, the Opry has also stayed true to its roots, with each performance showcasing beloved cast members, today's hot hitmakers and up-and-coming artists celebrating country music's big tent. The dynamic nature of touring schedules means audience members rarely know who will perform when purchasing tickets in advance, but rest assured it's always musical magic.

While the ultimate Opry experience is being part of the live audience, both the Grand Ole Opry House and Ryman Auditorium offer exciting opportunities to get a behind-the-scenes look at making the legendary show. Special tours of both venues, along with the new Opry 100 exhibit at the Ryman, pull the curtain back as guests stand on stage, hear anecdotes, and visit dressing rooms and other artists' spaces.

Event calendars, tour schedules and tickets are available online at opry100.com. When visiting Nashville this year, don't miss your opportunity to be part of history in the making.

PLAYING ON A GLOBAL STAGE

The centennial celebration is so big that Nashville couldn't help but share it with the rest of the world. This September, for the first time ever, the Grand Ole Opry will travel overseas.

The global popularity of country music makes the 100th anniversary the ideal time for the legendary show to perform on one of the world's most famous stages. An all-star cast will make the trip to London's Royal Albert Hall, making country music's rich traditions and diversity of styles accessible to new audiences who haven't yet witnessed the live show, while also introducing the production itself to its very first international stage.

BIRTHDAY BASH & NEW BEGINNINGS

In a year of big shows, some of the biggest will happen as 2025 draws to a close.

For decades, the Opry has celebrated Country Music Month for one weekend in October. This year, the festivities expand to every show during the month. The party starts from the minute

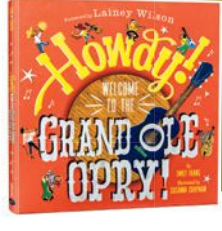

Grand Ole Opry

Grand Ole Opry

Celebrate the Milestone

Over the last century, the Grand Ole Opry has witnessed a lot of history and made quite a bit of its own. Author Craig Shelburne has captured that evolution in "100 Years of Grand Ole Opry," a visually stunning book that includes every member of the Opry with many personal remembrances and behind-the-scenes stories and anecdotes. And coming this fall, "Howdy! Welcome to the Grand Ole Opry" makes its debut to introduce children to the magic of the music. Find the books at national retailers, on-site at the Opry Shop and online at opry100.com.

guests walk into the lobby of the Grand Ole Opry House and continues with celebrations on stage, including appearances by some of country's hottest superstars.

On Nov. 28, 2025, the Opry will pull out all the stops to celebrate the exact 100th anniversary of the legendary show. This special performance will walk audience members through the decades, from Uncle Jimmy Thompson's first performance to today's worldwide appeal and beyond.

With Opry members home for the holidays, year-end shows are sure to share the joy of the season as Music City wraps up the centennial celebration. But – as has always been true of this iconic show – the best is yet to come. Join us in 2026 as the Grand Ole Opry kicks off the next century.

City since 1946. Their performances regularly include collaborations with hometown heroes like Ben Folds and Sugarland's Jennifer Nettles. The Symphony's renown stretches worldwide, too, with best-in-class venue acoustics and 14 GRAMMY® Award-winning recordings.

West of downtown in the Sylvan Park neighborhood, Nashville Ballet has been moving audiences since its formation in 1986. The company is famed for its stage adaptation of its Emmy-winning broadcast of "Nashville's Nutcracker," a reimagining of Tchaikovsky's beloved holiday tradition. But don't miss the fresh style and perspective it brings to contemporary performances like its "Attitude" series.

And for more than four decades, the Nashville Opera has been producing memorable masterpieces for locals and visitors alike. Enthralling past performances range from classics like "La Bohème" and "Madame Butterfly" to innovative operas like the 2024 world premiere of "The Cook-Off," about the layered history of – wait for it – macaroni and cheese. To keep things interesting outside of the main events, the Opera often pops up at holiday events and even the Nashville Farmers' Market.

CONTEMPORARY ARTS

A hub for all things new, now and novel, OZ Arts Nashville is Music City's destination for thought-provoking art exhibits, live music, avant-garde dance performances and so much more. Each visit to this former cigar warehouse is sure to be wildly different, but no less exciting, from the last.

The Fisher Center for the Performing Arts at Belmont University similarly focuses on the latest and greatest events, like storytelling through songs, celebrity speaking engagements and the hottest standup acts. In addition to these performers are the future of the industry:

students from Belmont's music and performing arts programs. And in 2025, it will serve as home to the world premiere of "DOLLY: An Original Musical" before it heads to Broadway the following year.

Need a laugh? Zanies Nashville and Third Coast Comedy Club serve them up regularly. Guests can enjoy a variety of comedy shows throughout the year, from big names to up-and-comers, plus special brunch performances.

TOP-TIER THEATER

"Wicked," "Armchair Expert," "Bluey:" No big-name tour is complete without a stop at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center (TPAC). Night after night (and on many weekend afternoons), its calendar is packed with can't-miss shows across three theaters and an adjacent concert hall. TPAC also hosts performances by Nashville Ballet, Nashville Opera and Nashville Repertory Theatre – the latter of which is the premier regional theater and home to the community's best theatrical artists.

In addition, Nashville Children's Theatre is family-centered and chock full of fun, and Studio Tenn is sure to captivate audiences with a robust season full of Broadway blockbusters and beloved classics performed by local artists.

For outdoor summer entertainment, Nashville Shakespeare Festival's flagship event is live theater at its finest and completely free to attend (although you can pay for reserved seating and donations are encouraged). The nonprofit organization stays busy year round, putting on indoor productions of the Bard's works in the fall, winter and spring.

TPAC

The Belcourt Theatre

A Century of Cinema

This year, Nashville's iconic independent film center turns 100. The Belcourt Theatre is celebrating the milestone with its Belcourt Stories Project, an oral history told by members of the community. Look for other special programming throughout the year – in addition to the typical 4,500 annual screenings that run the gamut from new releases to festival favorites to cult classics.

HUMS OF HISTORY

Entertainment is on every corner here, but these venues have roots just as fascinating as the music.

The Bluebird Cafe

This tiny space packs a big punch. Since opening in 1982, the Bluebird has been a breeding ground for new talent and legends alike. In fact, Garth Brooks landed his first record deal here. Despite its popularity, local artists seeking their big break still have the chance to play this stage.

Cannery Hall

A building dating to 1883, the Cannery has served as a flour and coffee mill, food company, restaurant and, since the 1980s, a live music venue. Over the years, its stage has seen artists from George Strait and Reba McEntire to Lenny Kravitz and the Black Keys.

Exit/In

In its 50-year run, Exit/In has gone from a quaint music venue to a local favorite showcasing country, rock, soul and everything in between. Past performers include Johnny Cash, Etta James, Willie Nelson, R.E.M. and many more.

The Grand Ole Opry

No visit to Nashville would be complete without seeing the home of country music, and 2025 marks 100 years. Whether you take a backstage tour, attend an anniversary show or just stop by, don't miss seeing where the magic happens.

Carnton

History is at the forefront of almost everything in Franklin, and there is no shortage of places to learn about its storied past centered around the Battle of Franklin. As one of the bloodiest battles of America's Civil War, the stories of those involved have been carefully preserved and shared with visitors for more than 150 years. Learn how the Civil War redefined America by taking a tour of Carnton and Carter House in Franklin, two historic homes that were at the center of it all and witnessed the battle unfold in an unbelievable way. A short drive away, explore Rippa Villa and learn about the nearby Battle of Spring Hill.

Classic tours are available at each of the homes, and don't miss specialty tours including Battlefield, Slavery, and Extended Tours at all three sites.

NIGHTLIFE DEBUTS

The Eye at Luke Combs' Category 10

Luke Combs' Category 10 is a hit with locals and visitors alike. The experience is now even more elevated (literally) with the opening of their rooftop, The Eye, which is the largest outdoor deck on Broadway.

Jelly Roll's Goodnight Nashville

The first Nashville native to secure a place on historic Honky-Tonk Highway, Jelly Roll's bar is just as fun as its namesake. Guests can enjoy plenty of good food, good drinks and good times.

Still G.I.N. Lounge By Dre and Snoop

For R&B and rap vibes, check out this new concept by the legendary Dr. Dre and Snoop Dogg. Savor the sleek decor, sophisticated cocktails and plenty of tunes worth dancing to.
